

The Assessment of Political Social and Psychological Effects of Wars on Society with Students' Views 1974 Sampling

Ali Efdal Ozkul¹, Yeliz Akintug² and Secil Besim³

¹*Near East University, Faculty of Education, North Cyprus, Mersin 10 Turkey*

Telephone: +903922236464/516, E-mail: aliefdal.ozkul@neu.edu.tr, aeozkul@gmail.com

²*Eastern Mediterranean University, Faculty of Education, North Cyprus, Mersin 10 Turkey*

Telephone: +905338208889, E-mail: y.akintug@gmail.com

³*Near East University, Faculty of Education, North Cyprus, Mersin 10 Turkey,*

Telephone: +903922236464/516, E-mail: secilbesim@gmail.com

KEYWORDS History. Individual. Peace Education. Society. Education

ABSTRACT Teacher and counselor candidates, whose views related to the social and psychological effects of the 1974 war in terms of Turkey and the Turkish Cypriot community, will ensure the emphasis on what will be reviewed about education in the formation of healthy communities in terms of social and psychological aspects. The purpose of this study is to describe the views of the students of History Teaching and Psychological Counseling and Guidance (PCG) departments of NEU Education Faculty related to the social and psychological effects of 1974 on the Turkish Cypriot and Turkey communities. The study was conducted using a qualitative research technique. A holistic time approach was used in the case study. The sampling was created with a "purposive sampling" method. Purposive sampling was used in the sampling criteria. As a result of study, the negative effects of the war were more influential than the positive effects.